Message from the Chairman

Now that British Summer Time has arrived, we can look forward to a wonderful spell of lovely sunny weather!

The Burns' Supper was a great success and thanks to all who made it so. I am sure that a similar event will be arranged next year and as Jean Savage did such a wonderful job making all the arrangements for the initial venture it is only proper that she is awarded the task of doing so again.

John has been out and about again, firstly with a visit to New Trows WRI and in April he entertained Blackwood Darby and Joan Club.

A funding application was submitted to South Lanarkshire Council and a grant of £240 was made available and this is being used to provide an additional display cabinet and storage facilities in the Centre. We are anticipating a number of young visitors to the Centre in the next few weeks as children from the school are being taken on walks through the village and when time permits they will conclude their walk at the Centre. We are always glad to help with local information as required and a number of people have been assisted in this way.

Our thoughts will be soon be turning to the forthcoming Gala Day and I look forward to seeing many weel kent faces on 2nd July in the Leisure Centre.

Hi, I am a Coalburn lass,. My dad was Wullie Walker, the butcher. My mum was Marigold Mathieson the hairdresser. I now live down south and on a recent visit came across the Coalburn Chronicles. I would love to see more. Is it possible to purchase them or a PDF file of them, and is someone else carrying on producing them since Mr Hamilton death. I am very interested in anything that has been produced and I have a large number of old photos of my grannas Jimmy Walker who resided in Garden Street. You can't imagine my joy when I watched a recent Taggart and was transported back to my granny's street. Thanks for your time. I am waiting with anticipation for your reply . Regards Marie Sneddon ps yes, I married one the of the baker Sneddon marie.sneddon@tiscali.co.uk

Hi, I am researching my Family Tree and know that one of my Great Uncles worked at either Low or High Whiteside Farm near Lesmahagow. His name was Allan Cameron and he was married to Elizabeth Thomson. On his Death Certificate the informant was Robert Cameron, his son, whose address was Whiteside. Would anyone be able to help me find out any more about the family. The Camerons lived in Lesmahagow, latterly at Milton Cottages. I would be very grateful for any help. I have tried in the past to contact Lesmahagow Heritage Society, but to no avail. Many thanks Isabel Hamilton.ihamilton222@yahoo.co.uk

Hi, My query is 'What does IOR stand for in the name of Coalburn IOR Pipe Band?' Many thanks Paul Sykes paul.sykes01@yahoo.co.uk

Hello there, Currently tracing my family history and it has lead me to Coalburn. Just after any help you can give me if possible. My great grandfather was called John McClure and he was born in 1891. He lists his fathers address (his Father was called Alexander McClure) as Wood Lea Cottage, Coalburn. I assume this is no longer there? I am assuming that Alexander McClure was a coal miner. On the 1891 census there is an Alexander McClure and a Margaret McClure, listed as living in Wishaw. I did a quick search on this and it appears to be 20 minutes drive from Coalburn. Is it feasible to say this is probably the correct person and that he would have somehow commuted to work in Coalburn earlier in his life then moved to Wood Lea Cottage later? Any info would be great
Thanks Pete McClure.petemcclure@Hotmail.com

The Parish of Lesmahagow

This parish, in 1860, second in acreage, but first in value in the Upper Ward, the area being, by Ordnance Survey, 41,533 acres, Crawford parish only exceeding this, with its 68,839 acres, but the rental of Lesmahagow was £43,475 against that of £11,250 for Crawford. This was exclusive of railway values in both cases.

Lesmahagow parish has the river Clyde for it's boundary on the east, from Wygateshaw southwards to the Clydesgrove in Carluke, and Holmfoot to opposite Harperfield in Lanark parish; on the south, by Douglas Water from Crookboat to the Ponfeigh Burn junction in Carmichael; and by the Poniel Water from Wolfcrooks westward to near the Ayrshire border below Auchinsilloch; on the south-west by the parish of Muirkirk, Ayrshire, from near the dam at Glenbuck, at the base of Cairn Hill, to Forrest's Cairn, but a short distance; thence north-west to Nether Kypeside by Strathaven; and by Stonehouse north-eastwards to Cander Water, on the marsh of Dalserf parish; thence north-east to the Clyde at Wygateshaw in Carluke.

The parish has been described as being "of a broad, oval figure, the largest diameter being fourteen miles, and shortest about twelve".

On the Douglas, Muirkirk and Strathaven borders, the hills are of considerable height and number; that of Nutberry, 1712 feet, on the south-west, and the source of the Nethan Water; Priesthill, 1615, on the Ayrshire border; Auchinsilloch, mickle, 1609 and little, 1479, on the Douglas border; Auchengilloch 1514, east of Strathaven, and at the head of Kype Water, Auchenrobersnout, 1193; Dunsdie Rigg, 1308, the source of the Logan Water; the Law, 1376, near the head waters of the Poniel; Dillar Hill, 1017; Woodend, 1072, and a range of heights upwards from the Clyde to the water-shed for the Vale of the Nethan.

The flood of the River Clyde occupies a large area in the parish and eastward of the upland heights. The parish is chiefly drained by the Nethan Water, which, from Nutberry Hill to the Clyde, has a course north-eastwards of about thirteen miles, and its banks are richly wooded and of surpassing beauty. The Logan Water is next in importance of the streams of the parish, but is scarcely half the length of the Nethan, into which it flows. The Kype Water is also of fair size, as it divides the parish on the west, and falls into the River Avon, above the village of Stonehouse; the burns are as many as might be expected to be found in a district so hilly.
